

I wish to see Indiana's no-call provisions left as they are. If that means the federal government leaves this issue to state control, so be it. However, I will also say that some sort of federal minimum coverage statute might also be appropriate, with the provision that states may use stricter regulations if their citizens desire such action.